REMINDER:

One of the requirements for maintaining your certification(s) is that you must earn a minimum of 8 Continuing Education Units (CEUs) annually (1 CEU = 1 contact hour). See Attachment 1 (Renewing Your Certification) to determine what types of training are acceptable for earning CEUs and what does not count toward earning CEUs. Be sure to keep records of your continuing education training and submit copies of your "proof of training" documents with your renewal.

If you have any questions about whether a course, conference, webinar or in-house training session will be accepted, please provide us with detailed content information for the training event (outline, detailed schedule, detailed course description, link to on-line course material, etc.) and we will be happy to evaluate that information for you.

By Popular Demand: Continued for 2018

If you earn more than 8 CEUs taking Nielsen Environmental E-School E-Modules or E-Courses, you can carry over the excess CEUs to the next year's renewal.

Attachment 1

Renewing Your Certification

Annual renewals for each of the six categories of certification are due January 15 of each year. Payment of the $85.00 (US) renewal fee and a completed Certification Annual Renewal form must be submitted to us prior to January 15 to avoid the late payment fee of an additional $85.00 (US), or your suspension from the International Registry of Certified Environmental Samplers and Specialists.

Keeping current with evolving technology and field methods is an important part of maintaining your certification. So, annually, each person who is certified must complete at least 8 hours of continuing education specifically related to the subject matter of the certification (i.e., a Certified Ground-Water Sampler must complete 8 hours of training related specifically to ground-water sampling). Under this program, 1 continuing education unit (CEU) is earned for each hour of training. Acceptable forms of continuing education include:

- Attendance at conferences with relevant subject matter
- Attendance at "live" NEFS on-site courses
- Taking Nielsen Environmental E-School modules or E-Courses (New for 2017 renewals – if you earn more than 8 CEUs taking E-Courses or E-Modules, you can carry over the excess CEUs into the next year's renewal)
- Attendance at "live" open-enrollment courses, web-based courses or webinars offered by other providers (including US EPA, ITRC, and other public entities or private companies)
- Attendance at webinars or other on-line training events offered by equipment manufacturers or suppliers
- Attendance at formal in-house (corporate or agency) training sessions that cover subject matter related specifically to the type of certification you hold

The following do not count toward your 8-hour CEU requirement:

- Corporate or other health and safety refreshers
- In-house reviews of SOPs or government agency guidance documents
- On-the-job field training
- Watching YouTube videos (unless they are embedded within a structured module or webinar)

Attendance at all training events (whether "live" or web-based) must be properly documented. Acceptable forms of documentation include:

1. Course completion certificates documenting proof of attendance and documenting the date(s) of the course, the subject matter for the course, and the number of hours for each course completed (a course syllabus works for this part);
2. A receipt for payment for each training event, along with a detailed description or outline from the course provider documenting the content and length of the course (simply copying website content without a receipt or formal confirmation of registration is not acceptable);
3. For conferences, a complete schedule of the conference with an indication of which conference presentations (platform papers, workshops, short courses or other events) you attended, and a signed affidavit from the presenter(s) documenting your attendance at each presentation (visit our web site to download our affidavit form or contact the event sponsor prior to the conference to determine if they have a similar mechanism for documenting your participation at the various presentations throughout the conference). Do NOT just send us a link to a website as your documentation.
4. For in-house training sessions, an outline of the session (with times) along with a certificate of completion or a signed affidavit from the instructor(s) documenting your attendance.
